

WAIVER DOCUMENTATION

In order to qualify for that waiver, you must present evidence that shows, in the aggregate, that you would suffer above and beyond that which people usually suffer when their spouses are deported. This means that the standard is high and you must gather and present evidence which includes the following:

1. Evidence of financial hardship to you, including bills showing joint financial obligations which you would have to assume alone if Monica cannot return to the United States;
2. Evidence of Monica's income in which you both rely to meet those obligations;
3. Evidence of your income;
4. Evidence of your current employment and salary;
5. Evidence of any and all other expenses which you would have to cover if Monica must remain in Macedonia;
6. Evidence of your spouse's family ties in the United States (for example, birth certificates of parents and brothers and sisters and any children);
7. Evidence of your spouses's employment history in the U.S. and salary, if applicable;
8. Evidence of your and your spouse's assets in the U.S.;
9. Evidence of psychological impact to you if Monica is not allowed to return to the United States – We recommend that you see a licensed psychologist for therapy and for the psychologist to provide an evaluation;
10. Notarized affidavits by persons who know you both and who can attest as to the hardship that you will suffer should Monica have to remain in Macedonia. Letters from friends and/or relatives must include the person's name, address, telephone number, as well as their legal status in the U.S. They must also attach copy of their birth certificate or lawful permanent resident card. The letters must indicate how the person knows you and be specific about the hardship they claim you will suffer;
11. Evidence showing your wife's ties to a church, community clubs, school, sporting leagues, etc. and
12. A sincere letter from you explaining how you feel about the possibility of Monica not being able to return to the United States, and how you feel about the prospect of living in Macedonia.

Please be diligent in obtaining as much of the above-referenced evidence as you can. This evidence will be attached to the waivers that Monica will present personally at the consulate in Macedonia.
